“I believe more than ever that the way our physical environment is designed—the look, the function, and the way we interact with it—provides the foundation to achieve a greater well-being to meet our ever-changing needs,” says Bonnie Lewis, an award-winning, nationally recognized designer who, at age 10, started re-arranging the furniture in her bedroom and, later, the rest of her house. Today she is a pillar of her profession.

integrates both aesthetics and wellbeing for the ultimate benefit of her clients. “This raises the bar for the residential interior design industry, as it takes design beyond aesthetics alone,” she explains. In addition to her specialization in luxury residential remodels, renovations, and custom homes, Bonnie is a recognized expert well-aging designer and customizes her designs for each client’s style preference and objectives.

Heading a prolific design practice that serves primarily Arizona, Bonnie has amassed numerous accolades to match her range of luxury residential and commercial designs. Among them are 36 national and regional Design Excellence Awards, including a 2021 “Best of Show” from ASID, “Overall Best” from NAHB Remodelers and an HGTV People’s Choice Award.
